

Rebecca Middleton, Executive Director
Alliance to End Hunger

Rebecca Middleton is the Executive Director of the Alliance to End Hunger. She is responsible for implementing the Alliance's vision of bringing together diverse organizations to build the public and political will to end hunger. This role brings together Rebecca's many years of professional experience in policy, strategy and advocacy with her lifetime commitment to anti-hunger initiatives.

Rebecca joined the Alliance to End Hunger after more than a decade in government relations at Cassidy & Associates, a public affairs firm in Washington, D.C. At Cassidy, Rebecca advocated and supported a wide variety of issues before the federal government on behalf of Fortune 500 companies, hospitals, universities and other not-for-profit entities.

Prior to joining Cassidy, Rebecca was a senior legislative assistant for Representative Frank R. Wolf (R-VA). In this position, Rebecca worked closely with constituents, local, state and federal officials, university leaders, and representatives of major corporations on a variety of appropriations and other public policy initiatives. Additionally, Rebecca has extensive political campaign experience having served as Representative Wolf's Campaign Director in 1998 and as his Campaign Manager in 2000.

Rebecca has a B.A. with a double-major in Political Science and English from Mary Washington College in Fredericksburg, Virginia.
